California Proposition 65 Declaration:

(The Safe Drinking Water and Toxic Enforcement Act of 1986)

California's Proposition 65, officially known as the Safe Drinking Water and Toxic Enforcement Act of 1986, is a consumer right-to-know law. It mandates that businesses provide warnings to Californians about significant exposures to chemicals known to cause cancer, birth defects, or other reproductive harm. The law also prohibits the discharge of such chemicals into drinking water sources. For more information, please refer to the California Office of Environmental Health Hazard Assessment (OEHHA) website: <https://oehha.ca.gov/proposition-65>.

AMPHENOL SOCAPEX's Position:

Our products, when used as intended, are not designed to intentionally release any chemicals listed under California Proposition 65. At the moment, none of our direct customers are impacted, as we do not currently conduct sales directly into California.

Due to the wide variety of applications in which AMPHENOL SOCAPEX products are used, customers are responsible for evaluating the specific conditions of use and determining their own compliance obligations under Proposition 65, including any potential duty to warn consumers, employees, or others in the State of California. AMPHENOL SOCAPEX does not currently perform a complete analysis of all articles with respect to Proposition 65-listed substances.

Please be aware that changes may occur in product composition or in the information supplied by our vendors. Accordingly, AMPHENOL SOCAPEX reserves the right to update this declaration and may provide Proposition 65 warnings in the future if deemed necessary.
